

ART HONOR SOCIETY PAINTS FOR MADISON HOSPITAL

The JP II Art Honor Society recently painted ceiling tiles to be used in the Madison Hospital of the Huntsville Hospital System. The graphic tiles will be used in the nursery to stimulate the newborns using bright colors and large geometric shapes. This is the first project for this year's society members and they are excited to have several other projects planned for this year. The Art Honor Society members have completed numerous service projects for area schools and Huntsville Hospital in the past few years. Mrs. Semmes, JP II Art Teacher said "The students really enjoy these projects. The students get to use their creative talents to help others in times of anxiety. This artwork allows people to look at the beauty of God's creations and remember they are never alone."
